We calculated the median student debt held by women when leaving each competing school. In each matchup, the school whose women students left with more debt is knocked out of the tournament, while schools where women held less debt advance.

*In case of ties, the institution with the greater rate of federal loan repayment among women advances.

Source: U.S. Department of Education College Scorecard